Guidance for Applicants

Information to help you apply for a JLMT award

JLMT Instrumental Award

Anthony Bradbury Conducting Scholarship

1 WHO CAN APPLY?

Applications for the JLMT Instrumental Award are welcomed from any current members of CBSO Youth Ensembles who have taken part in at least one Youth Ensemble activity in the last 12 months. Applications from CBSO Youth Ensembles members of any age are accepted although the Trustees look particularly favourably on applications from younger members.

Applications for the Anthony Bradbury Conducting Scholarship can be from current members of CBSO Youth Ensembles who have taken part in at least one Youth Ensemble activity in the last 12 months, or are current students or recent graduates (within 3 years) of Royal Birmingham Conservatoire (RBC) or University of Birmingham (UoB).

2 WHEN SHOULD I APPLY?

The annual window for all JLMT applications opens on 1st October and closes on 30th November.

The Trustees regret to say that applications received outside of this window cannot be accepted.

3 WHAT DO THE TRUSTEES CONSIDER?

The Trustees take a broad view when considering applications, seeking to balance the achievements and potential of each applicant, their contribution to the life of CBSO Youth Ensembles or RBC/UoB Ensembles, and the comments of an applicant's referee.

The Trustees are keen to assist where financial issues stand in the way of realising potential.

Where the sum sought is in excess of the sum available, applicants are encouraged to apply to other trusts and statutory or voluntary bodies, in addition to the James Langley Memorial Trust.

Also, if the applicant has any other mitigating circumstances which they think are relevant to their application, this should be included in their submission.

For financial assistance regarding travel expenses and/or accommodation for CBSO Youth Ensembles commitments, please refer to the CBSO's Learning & Participation department and ask them about The Blyth Major Bursary Fund.

4 NEED MORE INFORMATION?
